Life is full of questions. Some are trivial, some more serious — and some tremendously important.

Even as you read these words you may have questions about your health, your financial situation, your job, your family or your future.

But the greatest, the ultimate questions, are about God and your relationship to him. Nothing in life is more important than this. Good health, financial stability, secure employment, a contented family and a hopeful future are all things that people want. Yet even these are temporary and eventually pointless unless you have a living relationship with God, one that is clear and certain — and will last forever.

In the following pages you will discover why such a relationship is so urgently needed — and how it is possible.

The questions that follow are the most serious and important that anyone could ask. The answers are those that everyone needs.

Please read these pages thoroughly and carefully — and if necessary more than once.

You cannot afford to miss their message.

Is anyone there?

This is the fundamental question. If God does not exist, searching for him is pointless: *he that cometh to God must believe that he is.*¹ While it is impossible to ‘prove’ God in a mathematical sense, the evidence is very convincing.

Take the existence of the universe. To call it the result of an ‘accident’ raises many questions — and answers none. The same is true of the ‘Big Bang’ theory. Where, for instance, did the raw materials come from? Not even a ‘big bang’ can make something out of nothing! The evolutionary idea is widespread, but just as weak; how can ‘nothing’ evolve into ‘something’, let alone earth’s amazingly complex life forms?²

All other theories are equally fragile. The only satisfactory explanation is this: In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. Our world is not the random result of a gigantic fluke involving ingredients that were ‘always there’. Instead, the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear. Creation had a beginning, and it was God who brought it into being. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast.

This is reinforced by the amazing order and design seen everywhere and by the universal laws which hold everything together, from the vastness of outer space to microscopic organisms. But design demands a designer and laws a law-giver — and God is both! God . . . made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth.

But the strongest 'creation evidence' is man himself. Unlike other living creatures, man has something we call 'personality'; he makes intelligent choices, has a conscience and can distinguish between right and wrong. He is capable of love and compassion. Above all, he has an instinct to worship. Where did he get these qualities? Neither evolution nor an avalanche of accidents could have produced them. The clearest answer is this: the LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. Man is not an accident; he is fearfully and wonderfully made by the Creator of the universe.

1. All words in italic type (other than book titles) are quotations from the Bible as indicated on page 30.

2. This is a major and complex issue, impossible to discuss here. If evolution is a genuine problem to you, read Evolution, Fact or Fiction? by John Blanchard (Evangelical Press).

Is God speaking?

The question is vital. Left to ourselves we are totally ignorant of God. Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? God is beyond our understanding and we need him to reveal himself to us.

Creation is one of the main ways in which he does so. The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. The sheer size of the universe and its amazing balance, variety and beauty reveal a great deal about the God who made it. In creation God shows his stupendous power, awesome intelligence and brilliant imagination. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse.

When we communicate with one another we rely heavily on words. God also speaks to men through words — the words of the Bible. Nearly 4,000 times in the Old Testament alone (500 times in the first five books) you will find phrases like ‘the Lord spoke’, ‘the Lord commanded’, and ‘the Lord said’. This is why it is claimed that Scripture came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost.

In no other literature can we find scores of clear and detailed prophecies made by men claiming to speak from God, and later fulfilled to the letter. The odds against this happening by chance are too vast to be taken seriously.

Then there is the Bible's impact on people's lives. No other book has had such a life-changing power. Millions of people, over thousands of years, have proved by personal experience that the law of the LORD is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes.

After 2,000 years no expert in any field has ever disproved a single statement in the Bible.³ The reason is this: All scripture is given by inspiration of God. We should therefore accept it not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God.

3. If you have serious questions about the Bible read Nothing but the Truth, by Brian Edwards (Evangelical Press).
